

Dear reader,

Within this book I have tried to the best of my ability to keep the work concise and as simple as I could possibly achieve bearing in mind the complexities of the subject matter. I do hope you find this book easier to read than I did writing it. To write on such a subject keeping it simple and easy to comprehend has been the hardest thing I have ever undertaken and even now I think it could have been written in a more simplistic way.

My capabilities as a writer are poor in comparison to my capabilities as a metaphysician. Metaphysics of ontology is my subject matter not English language. To write this book in such a simple way I have not used academic jargon but have taken great care over the words I have chosen to relay my knowledge to you. At times, because of the simplicity and nature of this work, I have broken one or two of the golden rules of English language. Hopefully this will not offend the sensibilities of the academic.

This book as been written in a way that whosoever has a basic understanding of the English language can study the subject matter of this metaphysical work. I strongly believe that the information within this book belongs to all man and not just to the privileged few, for the work in this book is relevant to all.

Yours sincerely

INTRODUCTION

The chakra system is a comprehensive subject and to study it fully takes a lifelong commitment. None the less some knowledge on the subject does equip you well for life's journey, making the difference between happiness and misery. So the subject is well worth a little of your time.

The chakra system is fundamental to all that there is concerning the existence and experiences within the physical realm. Without the chakra system life as we know it could not exist. Even so, this is but one aspect of the Chakra system. This system extends far beyond our perceptions and the physical reality of our universe.

To enable us to use the chakra system to its optimum we need to have some degree of knowledge about the chakras' unseen communication network. This network is an interconnected arrangement of pathways that represent the unseen communication of the energy system. This energy system that is known as the chakra system knows the way round all that there is and all that there ever will be concerning our universe.

The chakra system holds the answers to every question that was ever asked. It also holds the answers to the questions we have yet to think of asking. When we have the knowing that is held within the chakra system we gain wisdom. This wisdom tells us how to use the knowledge of the chakra system enabling us to choose from all the choices there are giving us the capacity and ability to choose the life we would rather live. All the knowledge and wisdom we need to live our chosen life is there waiting for us to discover.

The silver chord philosophy tells of the birth of the first chakra, chakra 33 and the creation of our universe through this chakra. Chakra 33 holds and channels the sustainable energies required for the existence of our universe. How chakra 33 does this is told in the philosophies along with what was before chakra 33 and what comes after chakra 33.

From chakra 33 the philosophy goes on to tell about the creation of the second chakra, floating chakra, chakra 3.3. Floating chakra 3.3 is the chakra that gives rise to the existence of man and the sustainable energies man requires to pursue his/her endeavors. How this chakra came to be and what happened when it did is recorded in the philosophies. These philosophies tell of man and his origins bringing us right up to the present day and taking us beyond the evolution of the present day man.

The present day man has seven individual chakras that he works with. These seven chakras give man his physical body and the consciousness to run the physical body without man having to think about it. Our personal chakra system is where our thoughts come from and go to. It holds the three points of consciousness that are all of you.

Present day man is barely aware of this first point of consciousness but the consciousness that runs the physical body without thought is aware of the three points of you. It is one third part of man's first point of consciousness. It pushes you and drives you onward into physical awareness of all that you are.

Until you reach all three points of you it never stops pursuing its goal and its goal is to make you aware of you. This is its mission. It inspires you. It is the human spirit endeavoring to discover through physical awareness the three points of consciousness. The discovery of all this gives you the ability to live a fulfilling physical life for as long as you choose to live it.

For those of us that would like to live a fulfilling life for as long as we choose to, can. Your personal chakra system knows and holds everything you have ever needed to live a life of fulfillment. We as individuals are ultimately responsible for ourselves. How we choose to live, think and be is our choice and the choice is ours always to make. The consequence of our choices is the life we find ourselves living.

The silver cord never tells you how to make that choice. That is yours and yours alone to make and always will be. Man was given the gift of free will, the gift of choice. This gift to man belongs to all man and the choice is his alone to make. The silver cord lets you know what to do should you ever need a different choice. The understanding of the chakra system is quite easy when you have an explanation of how the system works. The Philosophies tell us how we attract our life's experiences and how we can change those experiences should we want to.

There are some of us who have never heard of chakras and are ignorant as to their existence. Then there are some of us that have heard of chakras but know very little about them and even less about how they work. Then there are those of us that do know about the chakra system and how it works yet choose not to use the knowledge of the system to sort out their problems. For them it is the preferred choice.

Rather than take responsibility and use their chakra system to its optimum, they find it much easier to blame life and life's events. They curse their lack of choice even though they have chosen it. They lament on how it is all beyond their control and how they are but a pawn in a bigger game of chess. The player moves the chess piece whenever and wherever it chooses to. The chess piece has no say in the matter what so ever, other than choosing to be the chess piece in the first place.

If you ever find yourself choosing the hellish path of the chess piece remember this. The choice you have made and the path you have taken has accountability and that accountability is experienced in the life you live. Should you ever want to change any of your choices the silver chord philosophies reveal the secrets the age of man forgot, returning to us once again the secret of man's existence in paradise. This knowledge gives us a greater understanding that sets us free from the chains that bind us to the hell that man created, a place most of us would choose to leave.

There are a rare few who not only know about the chakra system, they use their chakras to the optimum. These people take control of their destiny. They are able to use the seven chakras of the individual to achieve this. The philosophies discuss in depth how the seven chakras of the individual do this. When we understand how the chakra system functions, we know why we attract and create life's experiences. We also know what we can do to change any experience that causes pain and suffering. We can have the life we choose. We can experience paradise in the physical body and the silver chord philosophies reveal the secrets of the chakra system that tells us how.

The seven chakras of the individual each have a name. Each chakra is written about in detail. The details discussed enable us to have a greater understanding of self and how we are all interlinked. Once we are able to understand fully how the chakra system works our comprehension of man and the universe becomes much more clear. That is why the knowledge, understanding and wisdom of the chakra system given in the silver chord philosophies are so important to mankind at this present point in evolution.

The Silver Cord Philosophies have no dogma and the first series reveals the information that creates the map that charts the chakras, unseen communication network. The understanding of this map shows you the way out of your personal living hell and on in to paradise should you choose to take it.

Chapter One

The Creation of Chakra 33

In the beginning there was one dark mass of spiritual energies. It was whole and complete in its wholeness and always will be, for nothing can deplete the whole for it is the whole. It held all other energies for all other energies was part of its nature, it moved and still does to its complete rhythm in and out of itself in all dimensions. It was and still is its own symphony. Nothing can, or ever could, deplete the energies of the whole for it is and always will be the essence that holds all existence within its many realms.

Within the one dark mass of spiritual energies is a dark swirling mass and within the dark swirling mass is a sparkly spiritual element. This sparkly element is of the whole and moves with the dark swirling mass, but unlike the dark swirling mass that moves in and out of itself, the sparkle does not pass through its own element. As the sparkle meets its own element it attaches to and stays together. This process takes longer than any amount of time we can measure and longer than man can begin to conceive.

Eventually the sparkle becomes of a certain dimension in one place. Its dimension becomes no larger than in its original state but is no longer as dispersed through the whole. The sparkle has its own vibrational sound and as it attaches it reaches a certain mass. Its sound is more prolific in this one place.

When the sparkle reaches a certain state of mass, the sound it emits reaches an octave. This octave creates a force and this force brings the dynamics of our creation together and the creation of our universe begins.

When the sparkle reaches this state of mass the sound it emits reaches an octave that creates a force. This force creates a momentum and the sparkle moves to the momentum. If this event could be viewed, it would look as if the sparkle in its mass was beginning to pull away from the whole which is not so. The mass is the same as in its original state and is still held within the whole, but it has reached a significant point in its evolution. It has begun its part in the process of creation.

With the momentum created by the force, the sparkly spiritual energies spiral in a moving light. Encompassing the spiral is a rotating golden casing. The golden casing is created by the whole. Once the momentum begins, the swirl of the whole as it passes through the golden casing now interacts with the sparkle. The swirl no longer osmosis's through the sparkle that is within the golden casing. Outside of the golden casing the swirl and the sparkle carry on as before, both unaware of one another. Nothing has changed. Everything remains the same but within the golden casing we have the criteria for the beginning of form.

We now have the first golden casing. This golden casing encloses the sparkle and the sound of the force. Within the golden casing the sound of the force takes on a different octave. This octave now has a different sound and this sound the swirl recognizes as the sound of the whole. The swirl that is passing through the golden casing now interacts with the sparkle. As the swirl does this it releases a code into the sparkle. It is at this point another golden casing is created by the whole. The second golden casing encloses the sparkle, the sound of the force and the swirl together.

These two golden casings are the beginning of the universal chakra, chakra 33.

Within the whole there are many such sparkly energies creating universes. These universes are far removed from one another but in total contact for the swirl of the whole holds all as it moves through all still playing its symphony. For the whole nothing has changed but the sparkle now has its own signature within the whole. A soloist playing in the orchestra and the symphony of life plays on.

The sparkle within the golden casing becomes the element for physical form. The swirl is the component that holds physical form in place. It is the space between the molecules and this space is programmed with the correct information that holds form together. The energy of the force is the sound of nature and becomes the force of nature within the universe.

Once the code is released from the swirl to the sparkle the sparkle becomes aware, not only of itself in relation to the whole but also of its self in relation to the swirl. It is at this point that the sparkle opens up to the whole and the sustaining energies of the whole in its new distinguished definition. The sparkle is the body of matter. It now holds the sustaining life force of matter. This sustaining life force is the life force of matter and the body of man.

As the whole encloses the swirl, the sparkle and the energy of the force in the second golden casing, this golden casing supports the swirl the sparkle and the energy of the force with the vibration of sustaining energies. The second golden casing is the completion of the filter system of the universal chakra, known as chakra 33. Chakra 33 is the chakra that holds the blueprint of the universe and the blueprint of the universal consciousness. This blueprint is encoded in the structure of the golden casing.

All that was needed to create and all that was created and all that is needed for creation is encoded in the blue print of chakra 33. This code is the code for creation. It vibrates to the vibration that vibrates the frequencies of the sustainable energy released by the whole at the point of creation. This vibration releases the sustainable energies from the whole, to chakra 33 and chakra 33 releases it to the universe. Chakra 33 holds the sustainable energies of our universe and all criteria for our universe.

Energy that does not pertain to our universe is of a different vibration and is not of the correct criteria for this creation and as such is not of sustaining energies. These vibrations are not on the blue print of chakra 33. Any vibration that is not on the blue print is filtered out of the chakra system through the fabric of the golden casing. The filter system does this by slowing down or speeding up the energy within the vibration as it passes through the system. What the whole programmed and only what the whole programmed is in the blueprint of chakra 33.

Because Chakra 33 uses only the vibration on its blue print this chakra is in its perfection, and the universe is in perfect balance and stays this way for all of time. The vibrations that are not of sustainable energies do not come into play with chakra 33. The reason for this is man is not created with chakra 33 and it takes mans consciousness to bring into play these other vibrations.

As the sparkle and the swirl move together within the golden casing they create a moving light that emits a light so bright the human eye could not behold it. This light is the knowing of the whole reflected by the sparkle. The moving light is the emission of the whole within the golden casing. This moving light holds all the dimensions of our universe and is the beginning of the dynamics of our creation.

The whole exists far beyond our universe and does not begin or end with us. All that is held within the existence of the whole, including that which is beyond the golden casing is reflected by the light. Man sees only the reflection of the whole. To see the whole man has to evolve and until he does he will not have the physical ability required to look upon the whole in its entirety. Until the day man has evolved sufficiently he will have to study the whole in the reflection of the light.

As the sparkle and the swirl move together within the golden casing they create a dance and this dance vibrates to the point of physical matter. The dance is responsible for filtering the inorganic universe in a way that begins the process of the organic universe. As the inorganic universe moves with the dance the make up of the inorganic changes by the time it has reached the second golden casing. Any purities not on the blueprint of chakra 33 have been filtered out. As the inorganic starts to pass through the second golden casing the organic universe is created. This is when something seemingly appears out of what seems to be nothing.

As the swirl encodes the sparkle, the energy of the force is released into the sparkle. This energy sustains the sparkle. This code is what distinguishes the sparkly mass.

As the inorganic sparkle solidifies, the swirl holds the space between particles in place. This is the beginning of physical matter. With time physical matter evolves and eventually we have what we have today-the planets, the stars and the physical universe we know.

With out the sparkle there could be no mass and without the mass there could be no physical earth. It was the sparkle coming together collectively that created the octave that vibrates the vibration of creation.

The force has its own sound and this sound begins the process that releases the encrypted code that unifies the sparkle with enough momentum for the criteria of physical form to begin. This form begins with the inorganic, the beginning of physical matter.

The golden casings mark the beginning of space in time; this space in time is what gives rise to the creation of linear time. Linear time is one of the criteria needed for the organic universe. It is where matter and consciousness come together to create the time of physical creation. Although chakra 33 creates the time of physical creation and the criteria for the environment for man's existence, chakra 33 does not give rise to man or man's existence. For the total requirements of man we need a third golden casing. With the third golden casing comes the sustainable energies required for man's incarnation. With the third golden casing we have floating chakra chakra 3.3.

With the right criteria physical matter evolves and eventually we have what we have today the physical universe we know. What we don't have at this point is the complete criteria for man. For the requirements of man there needs to be two identical chakras, chakra 33 and floating chakra 3.3. It is the floating chakra that gives rise to the birth of man. But what we do have at this point is the creation of the first chakra, chakra 33 and with chakra 33 comes the environment that is the right criteria for man's existence.

Chapter Two
FLOATING CHAKRA, CHAKRA 33
THE RISE OF MAN

For the requirements of man there needs to be two identical chakras, chakra 33 and floating chakra 33. It is the floating chakra that gives rise to the birth of man. With the creation of the first chakra, chakra 33 the environment which is the right criteria for mans existence occurs but it is still a creation without mankind. It is the sparkle's reaction to the swirl that is needed to give essence to man and the sparkle only reacts to the swirl when the mass of the sparkle is twice the dimension that it is when the swirl first interacts with the sparkle.

The swirl always interacts with the sparkle at precisely the same point. When this occurs the second golden casing is created and the sparkle becomes aware of the swirl. Awareness alone is not enough for the creation of the third golden casing and this golden casing is needed for the creation of the floating chakra. For the requirements of the third golden casing the sparkle has to react to the swirl, but the sparkle cannot react to the swirl for there is not enough mass for the energy required for the sparkle to react with.

One hundred percent of the sparkle's mass is required for the creation of chakra 33. Fifty percent of the mass is used with the first golden casing and fifty percent is used for the second golden casing. This leaves no mass left for the sparkle's reaction to the swirl and the sparkle only reacts to the swirl when there is the right amount of mass for man's requirement. Without this reaction, the right criteria for floating chakra, chakra 33 cannot be met.

Chakra 33 takes the same amount of mass as floating chakra 33 but it does not need the criteria of the third golden casing. Chakra 33 needs only two golden casings to create the universe. Floating chakra 33 needs not only the same amount of mass as chakra 33 to create man's existence it also needs the third golden casing.

The complexity of man and his existence and the requirements of that existence take more in creation than the whole universe does in its creation, a staggering thought especially when we consider the universe and its vastness. The sun, the seas, the stars, the planets and the nature of all of this take less in requirements than the species of man. The requirements of man and the mass needed for this has more to do with the nature of man and all he is capable of in his evolved state. Sadly, the greatness of mankind and what he has achieved up till now in the scheme of all things leaves a lot to be desired.

At the birth of the first chakra 33 there is not the mass needed for man's criteria so where does the mass come from for man's creation? The answer to this is quite simply that there are many sparkly energies attaching to and gaining mass, all far removed from one another but in total contact for the whole holds all. No matter how far removed one mass of sparkly energies may be from another mass of sparkly energies the mass that is needed for floating chakra 33 and the third golden casing is there being created within the whole waiting to play its part in creation.

The two masses of sparkle do not have to be together or near one another or reach the state of mass required at the same time. All the sparkle has to do is attach to its own element and eventually the criteria, for floating chakra 3.3 is reached and the third golden casing is created by the whole. The floating chakra gets its name from the fact that it is not static or bound to the mass of the sparkle. As long as there is enough mass that is the right criteria then the floating chakra can be anywhere.

When the second golden casing is created and at the point of physical matter, if the criteria is right the sparkle reacts to the swirl and the process of interacting and reacting begins all over again but this time instead of it being only the swirl and the sparkle interacting and reacting we have the conscious vibrational point of matter. When this happens the third golden casing encloses the swirl, the sparkle, the sound of the force and point of physical matter and the filter system of floating chakra 3.3 is created.

When the vibrational point of physical matter emits into the filter system and blends with its source, the sparkle, we have physical and spiritual conciseness. This consciousness gives us unity. This unity has a combined sound of physical matter and the sound of the sparkle. The swirl recognizes this sound from the sound of the whole and interacts with the sparkle and the point of physical matter. We now have a trinity and with the trinity comes the sustaining energy of the whole and the final criteria for the vibrational point of man's consciousness.

The floating chakra is given its sustainable energy when the swirl interacts with the reaction of the sparkle for it is at this point that whole interacts with the swirl and the sparkle giving rise to sustainable energy. It is the interaction of the swirl for the second time that brings the whole into play with the sparkle and the swirl. It is the essence of the whole that is within the sparkle that creates matter from seemingly nothing. It is the essence of the whole that is within the swirl that creates the space between the particles of matter. The whole programs the swirl to hold in place the space between the molecules and it is the space that holds the program for our existence.

Man cannot exist without the swirl for the swirl is the space between molecules that holds the force that keeps the molecules in place. Man can not exist without the sparkle for the sparkle is the energy of the molecule and without the molecule there would be nothing for the swirl to hold in place. The floating chakra meets the right criteria for the creation of man, and holds the perfect DNA of mankind. In a universe that is without this second chakra, life as we know it does not exist within that universe.

The defining moment of the sparkle in this incarnation was its evolution to man's physical ness and the defining moment of the swirl in this incarnation is its first consciousness of man and the possibilities of such an existence. What was created in man and with man at this point in creation was sustainable. It came from the whole and the whole sustains the whole. Everything that was created along with chakra 3.3 and floating chakra 3.3 is sustained by the whole via the third golden casing.

That what man has created since the beginning of time has not all been created with the sustainable energies of the whole. Man has sustaining energy. It comes from the whole but often what he creates he does not create from the whole. He creates from the self and the self has sustainable energy only for the self and not always for that which the self creates. When man creates from the vibrations on the blue print of chakra 33 and floating chakra 3.3 what he creates is automatically sustained with sustainable energies.

As the third golden casing encloses the swirl the sparkle and the conscious vibrational point of matter. Any other vibrations that may be passing through at this time is also enclosed within the golden casing. These vibrations are filtered out of our universe through the chakra system. These vibrations do not have the mass required to be part of this universe. Filtering these vibrations out of the first chakra, chakra 33, is not a problem as there is nothing to hold them and they pass through the system almost as if it were not there.

The story slightly changes with the third golden casing and the second chakra floating chakra 3.3. This is due to the fact that man has enough mass in his own right and is able to interact with these vibrations. What we need to remember is that these vibrations are not on the blue print of chakra 33 or floating chakra 3.3 and as such do not receive the unconditional sustainable energies of our universe. When man interacts with these vibrations he does this by way of thought and holds these vibrations in his chakra system. These vibrations are not self sustaining so man has to sustain them with his own energy.

What man creates is sustainable by the life force he gives it if he creates on any vibration other than the vibration of sustainable energy. This depletes man of his life force and this is what finally brings about his physical death. This death is not at a time of his choosing, for him it is the hand of fate that chooses the moment of death and that is at the moment he depletes the last of his life force.

These vibrations respond to man's thought and begin to create the disillusion of man's desire. Eventually man will burn himself out for these vibrations brought to this level only feed off negativity and negativity breeds more negativity. The vibration itself has no control over this. Man is the controller and he controls by thought alone. Eventually matters come to a head and the realization of what man is doing comes home to roost. If man realizes in time he can save the world he lives in and the incarnation of mankind.

If man chooses not to interact with the vibration that is not on the blue print of chakra 33 then this vibration moves through our chakra system and is harmless. But when man engages with this vibration things begin to change and he holds this vibration in man's individual chakra system. When this happens the vibration creates many illusions. This is done with the energy of man. These illusions can be viewed by man and are quite remarkable and enchanting. Once more than one man interacts with this vibration the vibration then becomes part of the Maya and to distinguish between the sustainable part of the Maya and the unsustainable part of the Maya becomes almost impossible to do.

As enchanting as these illusions are they are not from the universal chakra systems sustaining energy. For those illusions to become our reality man has to interact with the illusion giving it energy. It is man's energy that creates the interaction with the unsustainable vibration there by bringing hell in to existence in man's paradise. These energies only come into play when we have floating chakra, chakra 33. Floating chakra 33 is the chakra that gives rise to man and man has freedom of choice. In his freedom of choice he can choose to work on these vibrations and often does so creating his own living hell.

Those that choose to live on this vibration do this through their own individual chakra system and need to be aware that this vibration cannot remain here without man's energy to sustain it and man's thoughts to interact with it and keep it here. Without man this vibration does not exist in this chakra system as it does not have the sustainable energy needed to be part of this existence in this filter system.

This vibration of unsustainable energy creates our living hell and the vibration on the blue print of chakra 33 creates our living paradise. As most of us do not live in paradise we can assume which vibration we are living and experiencing. All the imbalances that exist in our world come from the vibrations which are not on the blueprint of chakra 33. Eventually these vibrations will exhaust man and all that was created by man on these vibrations.

Once the unsustainable vibration is held here by man this vibration knows only fear. It can not sustain its existence here. Because of this the vibration is insecure and not stable. Man cannot secure it. Man can breathe the breath of life into it long enough to live in his creation of a living hell. Each time man interacts with this vibration more of this vibration is held here. The more that is held here the more of mans energy and his existence is needed to sustain it. Man sustains this vibration with pain, sorrow, misery and fear. These are the energies required for man to keep this vibration here. This is because man is interacting with a vibration he cannot sustain with his life force, thereby creating fear. The energies of fear create mayhem and with it more fear, and it is this mayhem that we have created that sustains this vibration thereby creating mans living hell.

These vibrations do not choose to create a living hell. Man does that. This vibration at its highest level would much prefer to be released and carry on its journey as it has a better place to be. But man binds it to his whims and dare I say this vibration is none too pleased about this and would be free this can only come about when man stops interacting with it. This is done either by detaching himself from this vibration or by making the personal and spiritual growths required to change matters.

If man decides to do nothing and carry on regardless then he will eventually be destroyed, by his own hand. This event will come to pass of that there is no doubt if man carries on making the choices he's been making. Still there is hope for mankind as we can change the unsustainable energy of these vibrations via our individual chakra system to a sustainable energy at a moment's notice by a process of thought and attitude that is attainable by all of man.

Chapter Three

THE NATURE OF THE SWIRL AND THE SPARKLE

The sparkle and the swirl are both of sustainable energy and we can recognise this energy in the nature of the sparkle and the swirl. Without the sparkle there could be no mass and without the mass there could be no physical earth. It was the sparkle coming together collectively that created the octave that caused the swirl to interact with the sparkle. It was the swirl's interaction with the sparkle that created chakra 33 and with chakra 33 the process for physical earth.

The process for man's creation occurred when the sparkle reacted to the interaction of the swirl. It was the reaction of the sparkle that created floating chakra, chakra 3.3 with this chakra we have the birth of man and time. Even so without the swirl man cannot exist, for the swirl is the space between molecules that holds the force that keeps the molecules in place.

The sparkle does not govern solid mass but it is the element of solid mass. It is the swirl that governs form of solid mass. The swirl does this from beyond the notion of time. The notion of time did not occur before the creation of chakra 33 and our time did not occur before the creation of floating chakra, chakra 3.3. The notion of time was created when the swirl interacted with the sparkle bringing form, not the physical form as we know it but the process that begins the make up of our physical form.

The swirl and the sparkle can be seen in the many wonders of nature. Nature is all round us and the swirl holds the blueprint of all nature. We can see the swirl. It is of the land, the earth and the seas. It is the soil beneath our feet. It is the miracle of life and holds all life in its embrace. All these things are held within the pattern of the swirl.

The swirl consumes me as I look upon the breathtaking landscapes of the earth, and the nature of the swirl is what holds my physical existence together. Because of this bond between me and the swirl when I recognise it, every fibre of my body is stilled and in that stillness my whole being is alight. My body's senses are heightened and I know I am alive.

The arch of a rainbow with its iridescent colours, touch me and with its touch my heart fills with joy. The beauty of a sunset captured in the sky inspires me as no other ever has, and there in the glory of a sunrise I see the swirl's reflection and that reflection washes over me and in it I have absolution and peace stills my mind.

And there within the peace and the stillness of the swirl's reflection, I see the sparkle moving and dancing, and as it dances its dance my own inspiration starts to stir and slowly it moves in rhythm with the dance. As my being moves with the rhythm of the dance I feel the sparkle within me and in that very moment my understanding of immortality takes me to eternity and there I am at the beginning of all time, and knowing without any words being spoken life started long before time and goes on long after time. Life is beyond time. It is our understanding of life and time that does not go beyond time.

The sparkle is the matter and energy of all living things and the essence of all life. Without the octave of the sparkle quirks would not be. The swirl in its turn holds the spaces between matter in place not unlike our gravity but more complex than our understanding of this subject. As gravity keeps us from floating off into space, the swirl holds the molecules of the physical structure in place creating the beginning of our creation. The swirl holds the pattern of physical form while the sparkle is the energy of matter. The swirl and the sparkle together create duality and with duality come the secrets of creation.

I see the sparkle in all manner of things. I see it in the movement of a ballerina. I hear it in the voice of singers. I see it in the fingers of a musician. I hear it in the music they play, in the words their voices sing. I see it in great feats of accomplishments. I see it in the movement of athletes and I see it in the throes of passion. I see it as it dances through the aura making you sparkle and shine. I see it in the good and the great and in the unsung heroes of every day.

I have seen it as it leaves a dying body, the sparkle dancing its dance out of the body and there in the dance I see the spirit lives on. There is no doubt in my mind that the sparkle is also the essence of man shown in the reflection of the swirl. The swirl and the sparkle are linked directly to the physical body of man through the chakra system and the physical body of man is linked directly to the spiritual body of man and the spiritual essence of God by the same chakra system.

Spiritual and earth energies are one and the same. Our incarnation here on earth at this time is to balance our spiritual creative energies with the denser earth energies in the physical oneness of mind, body and soul, bringing together in our heart the spiritual and physical energies of heaven and earth. When the race of mankind achieves this, they manifest into existence the planet's evolution and the fourth golden casing.

The fourth golden casing comes to pass when the vibrations not on the blueprint of chakra 33 evolves through the personal chakra system of the individual by growth in spiritual and personal physical awareness. This vibration as it moves through the chakra system begins to change with the growth of man and will move to the highest thought. With time this vibration changes from unsustainable energies. Eventually as the physical man evolves the unsustainable energies evolve. When this vibration reaches the code of chakra 33 through the physical oneness of man we have the fourth golden casing.

Man has a choice. Does he detach from the vibration of unsustainable energy and live in paradise within the third golden casing? Or does he interact with the vibration of unsustainable energy and make growths from this interaction for himself and the vibrations till the vibration has reached the blueprint of chakra 33. When this happens the fourth golden casing is created and all that comes with the fourth golden casing.

How to know which choice we are making and what paths we are taking to make these choices and how we change the unsustainable energies through the chakra system is given within the books of the silver cord philosophies. All we need to change the vibration from unsustainable to sustainable is held within one thought but if that one thought was to be revealed now man would not believe it. So before the thought is revealed the silver cord philosophies will give the reason why this one thought changes everything in a detailed explanation of the individual chakra system and how the chakras work so that one thought is enough to bring balance to our world.

The final part of the energies' filtration is translated, interpreted, and emitted, through our chakras. The chakras are the unseen communication network of our energy system. They are interconnected by an arrangement of pathways that translate vibrations of both worlds. The chakras are the final extension of the spiral's filter system. The passage of the multidimensional energy passes through the filter system. The process manifests creative energy, bringing into existence the realms of our reality.
